My piece showcases the relationship between the dark and the light. In my piece I have a young girl surrounded by darkness while focusing on the light, or the good. This shows a technique to block out the hatred that resides within the dark by not letting it affect you. The young girl has a slight glow around her illustrating that the negativity around her is reflected off by her positivity. The vibrant colors within the sky above her represents the good in the world. By her not paying attention to the evil darkness all around her, she's able to truly focus on what's important. This further illustrates how someone can deal with the darkness or evil within their life. She doesn't let the darkness affect her because she's always looking on the good. She's truly focusing on the 'bright side'.
