My picture, along with my quote, shows the harms that bullying can do to someone. Once you say something to someone they will never forget it. My picture demonstrates this well because no matter what someone does or how they act, they could still be facing a bully. They may act ok, but the words they hear will always stay with them.

I want everyone that sees this picture to know that everyone is the same. Never discourage someone or judge them by what they do or how they look, especially be their color. Everyone is beautiful and unique in their own way. If someone ever tries to bring you down, don't let them. Put them aside and be yourself.
