For this assignment I focused on how words affect people and how to deal with it. Martin Luther King, Jr. had to go through this very problem with people's opinions. Even though people would talk him down and tell him to give up, he continued on with his dream. I myself am a very expressive person, by this I mean that I wear weird clothes, I dye my hair a lot, I do weird makeup, and I even make weird earrings to wear. My dream is to go to college and become an art teacher. People seem to have a lot to say about it, and it's not always positive. I always try to reach for my dream and stay positive, but it can be hard with all of my negative thoughts pulling me back and chaining me down.
