Domino Effect

Everyday hate is spread from person to person, a domino effect plagues our communities. When we hurt one, we hurt all. In my piece a young girl is pictured crying, dominos surround her as they collapse. Whether it be racism, ableism, or prejudice against any group, hatred is a mirrored action. The only solution is to pick up these collapsed dominos and rebuild, which is represented by the helping hand in the background. The instinct to fire back when we are hurt is strong. Yet, love is stronger. Break the cycle, it could stop with you.
